ASKS SUIT

For State Money Paid to W. S. Taylor's Army.

Requests Attorney General to Proceed Against Bondsmen of Sweeney and Day.

Frankfort, Ky., April 19.—State Auditor Coulter today filed with the Attorney General information that more than $30,000 had been illegally paid out of the Treasury by former Auditor John S. Sweeney and former Treasurer Walter R. Day during the months of January and February, 1900, to support the soldiers called to Frankfort by W. S. Taylor, immediately after the assassination of Gov. Goebel, and has asked the Attorney General to file suit against the bondsmen of these ex-officials to recover the amount so paid. Gen. Breckinridge received the communication and will act upon it early next week.

The exact amount alleged by the Auditor to have been illegally spent in maintaining the Taylor soldiers here is $30,006.80. Of this amount Col. C. C. Mengel, of the Louisville Legion, is credited with receiving $12,000 and former Adj. Gen. Collier a like amount.

MRS. SARAH A. WILLS

Dies at the Home of Her Son-in-Law, Mr. P. B. Pendleton.

Mrs. Sarah A. Wills died at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Philander B. Pendleton, near Pembroke, Sunday morning, aged about 65 years.

Mrs. Wills was twice married, the first time to Mr. Henry Leavell and after his death to Mr. Geo. Wills. Mrs. Pendleton was her only child and she had for years made her home with her. She was a sister of Dr. John D. Clardy, former congressman from the Second District.

Mrs. Wills was a devoted christian and held membership in the Salem Baptist church. Her funeral services were held yesterday and the body interred in the family burying ground.

ASYLUM WEDDING.

Miss York Becomes The Bride of Mr. Mason.

A wedding occurred at the Western Asylum Sunday evening at eight o'clock, Rev. J. D. Irwin officiating. The contracting parties were Mr. C. D. Mason, of Clinton, Ind., a former attendant, and Miss Hannah York, one of the most valued female attendants in the institution. Miss York had been connected with the asylum for several years and during the administrations of both Dr. Gardner and Dr. McCormick performed her duties in a highly satisfactory manner and established a reputation for efficiency, discretion and ladylike demeanor. She leaves the Asylum with the good opinion of her associates and the best wishes of the officers.

INSTITUTE CLOSSES.

Col. Nall Says it Was the Best One Held So Far.

The very excellent program of the Institute at Church Hill Friday and Saturday, published in the Kentuckian, was carried out with many interesting details. The attendance was very large Saturday. The speeches were numerous and well conceived, and Col. I. B. Nall is authority for the statement that the Institute was decidedly the best one yet held of the series in different parts of the State. We hope to give a full report of the proceedings later on.

WAIT A MONTH,

Says The Democratic Committee Before Ratifying.

Action Deferred To a Date Beyond The Fusion Convention May 6.

The Democratic County Committee did not ratify the fusion agreement at the meeting Saturday. Nearly all of the members were found to be in favor of fusion, but it was thought best to postpone action for a month and the matter was deferred until the 20th of May. In the Newstead district the fusion movement was endorsed by eight of the leading Democrats in a written petition to the committee, asking that the agreement entered into be ratified.

A committee of Republican fusionists waited upon the county committee and were courteously received. The fusion convention called for May 6 may be postponed to May 22, but this has not been definitely decided.

Some changes are yet to be made in the fusion ticket to be submitted to the approaching convention. Mr. H. M. Dalton, the candidate for Sheriff agreed upon, has, after full consideration, decided not to accept the nomination, on account of his increasing business. Several other strong and influential Republicans are under consideration and some of them will be substituted for Mr. Dalton.

Mr. J. L. P'Pool, the Democrat selected for Representative, has authorized the statement that he cannot make the race and another candidate will have to be selected in his place.

The fusion sentiment is now practically unanimous, much more so than it was four years ago when the fusion with the Populists was effected after much negotiation, that resulted in the election of Senator R. C. Crenshaw and the Democratic candidates in the Judicial district. The Reform Republicans claim that they have two or three times as many votes as the Populists had when the fusion was made with them, and if the fusion was a good thing in 1897 it is a reasonable claim that it is equally as good in 1901.

The Republican fusionists agree to support the Senatorial candidate also, it a conservative Democrat can be agreed upon. The Democratic committee probably postponed the fusion matter to avoid possible complications in this race, as there has been no agreement applicable to this race and there are as yet no announced candidates in either Christian or Hopkins.

Before adjourning the committee passed resolutions endorsing Senator Crenshaw's course to the last Legislature, and also declaring for fusion on a "practicable basis."

FLOOD COMING.

The Upper Ohio and Its Tributaries Are Becoming Raging Torrents.

Rain and Snow Continuously For Three Days in Many Sections.

Cincinnati, April 22.—Peculiar weather conditions during the week culminated in a storm almost unprecedented in dimensions and so distributed that a tremendous flood in the Ohio river is impending. All signs point to a stage of water that may bring devastation of a most serious nature all along the Ohio river and its tributaries. A flood rain has been falling since Wednesday over a vast extent of the Ohio river valley watershed continuously. This morning the Ohio river was rising all the way from Pittsburgh to Louisville. Following these rains came the tremendous snowfall Saturday from Canada to Atlanta, paralyzing all wire communication across this snow-belt to-day. Twelve to fifteen inches of snow lies over Eastern Ohio and the greater part of West Virginia and Eastern Kentucky. This was supplemented by heavy rain in the headwaters of the Ohio to-day, and with warmer weather tomorrow the vast snow area will melt and add to the great volume of water. A flood of disastrous proportions will sweep down the Ohio valley within the next few days.

Tuesday Fair.

Louisville, Ky., April 22.—(Special)—Fair to-night except probably rain or snow in East portion. Tuesday fair, and warmer in east portion of state.

A widow and four children survive.

Occupants Had But Little Time to Get Out.

The residence of Reason Steele, col., was destroyed by fire about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, together with nearly all of its contents.

The house was situated on East First street. It is not known how the fire started, but when the alarm was given the building was falling in and the occupants had but little time in which to get out of the house.

Steele's loss amounts to probably $600.

EMPTY BARN

Breeding The Buff Leghorns.

Having been asked to write an article on numerous occasions on the above subject, I will state my views, as my experience has taught me, and I do not write this to get into or enter a controversy with those who may differ with me. The most essential thing to the breeder of thoroughbred poultry to have who contemplates breeding exhibition stock and showing it, is good, strong vigorous stock birds for foundation, and in the Buff Leghorns I think we have it; as who ever saw a sick Leghorn if it were given half a chance for its life. Leghorns do not sit around as some of the larger breeds do, and we all know industry is health, and the healthy bird produces the eggs with strong germ that produces a chick full of vigor. And in the Buff Leghorn I claim we have all of these qualities. It is conceded by all, the Buffs are the largest of the Leghorn family, and it is still conceded that the Leghorns have no equals as egg producers. And still again I claim the buff color has more admirers than any other two colors combined.

The breeders of Buff Leghorns have set the pace for the past year or two for the other buff varieties, and in the next year to come I look for a still greater improvement. The question of which is the proper shade of buff, or which is the most beautiful shade, I will leave for those who are more experienced in the English language to explain than myself. There is always a difference of opinion to be found among our breeders, and I believe it is an honest one, as to what is the best kind of a bird to use to produce "crack" show specimens; so as I said before, every one must work that out for themselves. I have my opinion, but the reader will have to come to Watertown to get it, as he then can see exactly how I get my show specimens. Assuming that we have the chicks hatched ready to go with the hen or put in the brooder, and good healthy chicks are raised both ways and more are raised when the incubators and brooders are used, the very first the last and the thing to think of all the time, is the health of the young stock, and that means keep them free from lice, give them plenty of cool fresh water, and the very best feed you can buy. If in the brooder, do not forget the grit.

I have always thought my farm raised stock the best, as they seemed to mature quicker than those raised in the city, and for the past two years I have had all my stock on the farm. The birds that grow right along from the start are the ones to watch as their plumage is generally of a better quality than in other words, I believe the birds that have a free range in the country, other things being equal, are superior to the city lot raised fowl. Now, when the cockerels begin to mature enough to bother the pullets, separate them, and at this time begin to separate your most promising birds from the different flocks, as the bird to win at either our New York or Boston show must be nicely handled just as soon as he shows or gives promise of being an exceptional specimen; and when I say nicely handled, I mean get your birds so you can go in their pens without their flying about. Be careful when you are working around them, get them tame, and in a short time you will note a wonderful improvement in the appearance of the young stock. You can tell a fancier just as sure as the sun rises and sets by the way his stock appears when he is handling them.

The Buff Leghorn does not need to have an especially shaded place to run in, in order to preserve or bring out its grand color to its best. I believe that the color must be imparted from the parent stock. In closing horn. I believe they mature quicker than any other variety of Leghorns, and as I said before, they are conceded by all to be larger, and will lay as many eggs as any breed of fowls in existence.

HARRY L. LAMON, Watertown, N. Y.

Some Diseases of Fowls

Disease and lice are the great obstacles to be overcome in poultry raising. The house may be kept free from lice by a liberal use of kerosene emulsion, and by whitewashing. Whitewash serves a double purpose, that of ridding the house of lice and making the interior much lighter, says G. C. Watson, in Michigan Poultry Breeder. A small window, with the interior of the house whitewashed, will make the building as light as a much larger window without the whitewash.

If the poultry houses are kept free from lice, the fowls can usually be depended upon to keep themselves free by a liberal use of the dust bath. If, however, body lice are found, they may be successfully treated by dusting insect powder under the feathers in the evening and allowing the fowls to remain undisturbed on the perches after the treatment.

Gapes in chickens frequently destroy large numbers, and are caused by tremendous worms in the windpipe. The number of worms is sometimes so great as to completely choke the fowl. A feather moistened with turpentine or kerosene oil and inserted into the windpipe and turned until the worms are removed is a practice quite largely recommended. Others recommend removing the worms with a fine wire or horsehair, doubled so as to form a loop; this is to be inserted into the windpipe and turned until the worms are detached, and then withdrawn, bringing the worms with it. Another remedy practiced by some poultrymen is to cause the chickens to breathe hard air in a confined space, in which fine, slaked lime is occasionally dusted.

Preventative measures are far more satisfactory than the treatment of infected fowls. The pens and yards should be kept clean and dry, and the chickens kept in as thrifty condition as possible by supplying proper food and exercise. While these conditions may not insure absolute freedom from disease in every instance, yet to moisture and filth can be attributed nearly all cases of gapes, particularly if the yards or pens were previously occupied by infected birds. Yards that have been allowed to become filthy and infected with the gape worm, may be improved by draining and thorough cultivation. Heavy applications of lime just before cultivating or saturation of the soil with strong salt solution (provided no crop to be grown) are recommended by experienced poultrymen.

Chicken Cholera—This is an exceedingly fatal contagious disease, which is widely distributed over this country, and causes enormous annual losses, especially in the central and southern sections.

The first symptom of the disease is, in the majority of cases, a yellow coloration of that part of the excrement which is usually white, followed by a violent diarrhoea and rise of temperature. Other common accompanying symptoms are drooping of the wings, stupor, lessened appetite and excessive thirst. Since the disease is due to a specific germ, it can only be introduced into a flock by direct importation of this germ, generally by fowls from infected premises. As soon as the symptoms of the disease are observed "the fowls should be separated as much as possible and given restricted quarters, where they may be observed, and where disinfectants can be freely used."

with any of the fowls, the birds of that lot should be changed to fresh ground, and the sick ones killed. The infected excrement should be carefully scraped up and burned, and the inclosure in which it has been thoroughly disinfected with a one-half per cent. solution of sulphuric acid, or a one per cent. solution of carbolic acid, which may be applied with an ordinary watering pot. Dead birds should be burned or buried deeply at a distance from the grounds frequented by the fowls.

The germs of the disease are taken into the system only by the mouth, and for this reason the watering troughs and feeding places must be kept thoroughly free from them by frequent disinfection with one of the solutions mentioned.

Treatment of sick birds is not recommended under any circumstances. The malady runs its course, as a rule, in one, two or three days, and it can only be checked with great difficulty.

Roup is one of the most dreaded of diseases. It is sometimes spoken of as the winter disease. The symptoms are hoarse breathing, swelled eyes, discharge at the nostrils, and sometimes a fetid breath. Treatment is not generally satisfactory. The affected birds should be removed, the houses cleaned and disinfected. Damp, foul air and cold drafts in the poultry houses should be carefully avoided whenever fowls are subject to roup. A decrease in the proportion of meat food in the daily ration is held by some to be highly beneficial in warding off this disease.

In general, the treatment of the common diseases of fowls is not so satisfactory as preventative measures. Nowhere more than in the poultry business does that old adage apply, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

MARRIED IN A CONVENT.

First Time a Nuptial L'Ass Was Ever Celebrated in a Convent in America.

New York, April 19.—Miss May Matilda O'Ryan, of Sillery, Que., and Dr. Gustav A. Tascereau, of St. Ferland, Nova Scotia, a nephew of the late Cardinal Tascereau, have just been married in the Convent of the Ursuline Nuns at Bedford Park.

Miss O'Ryan has been living, since last summer, in the convent on account of her sister, a nun, who came from South America to the Bedford Park Convent to regain her health, and special permission was secured from the ecclesiastical authorities of New York and Quebec. The occasion is said to have been the first time that a nuptial high mass has been celebrated within a convent in this country.

"I was standing in front of the Legislative building at a letter-box, talking to Judge Yost, when Charles E. Nason, or some one else I do not remember, came up and said that a party of men close by were waiting to kill Goebel as he came from the building."—Hon. W. O. Bradley.

"I do not agree with Gov. Bradley as to the time we heard of a plot to kill Goebel. I think it was in the morning, about the time of the public speaking on the steps. To the best of my recollection the shooting was to have been done by three men as Goebel came into the State Capitol grounds."—Judge W. H. Yost.

In a good house all is quickly ready.

THEIR ORIGIN.

Where Some of Our Favorite Fruits And Nuts Originated.

Olive—It is a native of temperate seacoast ridges of Asia and Africa; was brought to Southern Europe at an early date; was known in the early Bible times, and is named in the earlier accounts of Egypt and Greece; its cultivation was taught at Athens 155 B. C., and has been cultivated in England since 1648. Introduced into California by the Padres.

Orange—Probably was not known to the Greeks and Romans, but is thought to have been brought to Europe by the Moors, and to Italy in the fourteenth century, more than 1,000 years after the introduction of the citron into that country; it was planted in England with little success in 1596.

Peach—Was a native of Persia and China; was brought to Italy by the Romans in the time of Emperor Claudius; cultivated in England as early as 1550; was brought to America about 1680. Its name is derived from Persico, its native country. The ancients regarded it with distrust, as, according to Pliny, they supposed that the King of Persia had sent it into Egypt to poison the inhabitants, with whom he was at war. The Chinese have traditions of a peach tree of knowledge and another of immortality. With the Christians it was the apple tree that played such an important part in theological matters.

Pear—Was found common in Syria, Egypt and Greece; from the latter country it was taken to Italy prior to the commencement of the Christian era, for during the first century the Romans boasted of having 36 varieties. The pear was introduced into England prior to 1573. The original grafted pear was very similar in value to the original crab apple. Both fruits have been wonderfully developed and extensively cultivated.

Pecan—Is a native of the United States. Peneapple—A native of tropical America; is found in all parts of the torrid zone.

Plum—Is supposed to have come originally from Asia Minor; according to Pliny it was brought from Syria to Greece, and thence from Greece to Italy. It was introduced into England about 1522 and into America at a later period.

Pomegranate—Was a native of China and Southern Europe; it was used in Languedoc and Italy as a hedge plant and was cultivated in England in 1596.

Pumpkin—Its nationality is uncertain. It was introduced in England from the Levant 1570.

Quince—Was a native of Austria and other parts of Europe; it derives its generic name from Cydonia, in Crete, or Candia. The Greeks and Romans estimated it very highly for preserving. A Roman writer of the first century said: "Quinces not only yield pleasure to health." It was introduced in England in 1573.

Raspberry—Was introduced into the South of Europe from Mt. Ida, in Asia Minor. The name comes probably from the rasping roughness of the wood.

Strawberry—A native of the temperate latitudes in both hemispheres of Europe, Asia and North and South America. The name is supposed to come from the practice of placing straw between the plants to protect the fruit.

Tomato—A native of South America; introduced into England in 1586, and later into the United States.

Walnut—A native of Persia; the time of its introduction into Europe is unknown. It is cultivated to some extent in America and several species are native of this country.

Watermelon—Was native of the warm climates of the old world and was introduced at an early date in other countries.
